

THE VIKING GODS CROSSING

The defile with the most vertical walls in the Arctic

Ski crossing of the Akshayuk Pass inside the Ayuittuq National Park located in Baffin Island, Canada. A route of 100 kilometers in a spectacular defile with the most vertical walls in the Arctic. Mount Thor with 1 kilometer long of vertical wall, the double-cylinder of the gargantuan granite Mount Asgard, Mount Odin, etc. Transfer to the entrance point of the gorge in dogsled with Inuit guides.

the points of entry and exit of the defile are two small isolated villages where Inuit live with equal ease western life and traditional Inuit way of life. To reach the Pass Akshayuk we will start from the small Inuit village of Qikiqtarjuaq and we will cover a portion of frozen ice in the Davis Strait by dogsled with Inuit guides. During the approach we may see seals, polar bears and other arctic wildlife.

In addition to impressive granite walls that mark the route, along the way we will be "escorted" by hanging glaciers, we will ski on frozen rivers whose ice is so pure and transparent that you can see the vertical grain built by frozen water, we will cross lakes carved out by glacial moraines that appear to have been driven by giants, and in the distance, we will saw a true polar icecap, the Penny Icecap.

Our journey will end in the town of Pangnirtung, in the Strait of Cumberland, an Inuit settlement that in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century was one of the main destinations of the whaling ships of the epoch.
